

I believe it is wrong, if not illegal for a company to report to the common shareholders that they are financially okay until 2003 and then turn around and make an agreement with another company to invest in them making the common shareholder value virtually worthless. This is stealing.